FLIP TO LIFE

LCL/Positive Deviance YouTube Videos 6 & 7

Here are the latest two videos out on our new 'Flip to Life' YouTube channel! Do share them!

'Where Civilization Starts' (Arvind Singhal)
(1min 40secs)

'Being a Neighbour' - Equity & Justice (Horst Kleinschmidt)
(10min 40secs)

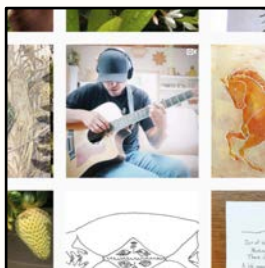

And here's a preview of what's still to come over the next five weeks, into December.

- 'Mother Teresa, Ella Fitzgerald, Mae West' (Arvind Singhal)
- 'Women in Rural India - Flipped Outcomes' (Anu Sachdev)
- 'PD & Bedouin Children in Negev' (Gesser-Edelsburg)
- 'Challenges for Public Health' (Kevin Barnett)
- 'Equity, Justice & Eugenics' (Jeremy Moseley)
- 'Pilgrimage to Sites of Subjugation' (Arvind Singhal)
- 'Enhanced resilience in stressed students' (Martine Bouman)
- 'Case Managers Acting Differently' (Kristin Kosyluk)
- 'Critical Care & Inequity Delta Clinic' (Sunny Anand)
- 'Community Mobilization Erijaville, South Africa' (Naiema Taliep & Jerry Winslow)
- 'Opening Up Space for Conversation' (Jerry Winslow, Jeremy Moseley)
- 'Importance of Individual Agency' (Evanca Kalula)

By the time we are done, we will have a 'mighty' collection of 21 pieces that introduce LCL as well as Positive Deviance and add case studies, perspectives and interviews. This alone has more than made up for our inability to hold the physical gathering we had planned in El Paso for April.

"The Space Between Us is the Magic" - #TrustLifeProject

The #TrustLifeProject, to which LCLI Fellow Heather Wood Ion has alerted us, asks: "How can we strengthen the connections between art, nature, our personal lives, and our community?"

"We have been given some space, a pause if you will, where we can reflect, listen to the silence and look at the world and our place in it in a new way. I have discovered that trusting life—the good and not so good—leaves the door open to new thoughts and new possibilities. It's trust that allows us not to be bound by fear of the unknown or things we cannot control."
